

UNLIREC's Arms Trade Treaty (ATT) Assistance Package

Our Approach

Capacity-building

National ATT Implementation Course for national authorities responsible for arms imports and exports.

Technical Support

Workshops on creating ad-hoc national control lists and implementing practical measures to regulate transfers.

“How-to” roundtables on setting up an effective and transparent national control system.

Legal Assistance

Creation of licensing structures and control lists.

Practical Tools

Risk assessment check-lists, templates and practical exercises.

End-use and user certificates, templates and protocol on their

Facts

85% of Latin America and the Caribbean States have signed the treaty

The poorly regulated international arms trade threatens the lives of women, men and children

Robust ATT implementation contributes to prevent the transfer of weapons that are used to commit serious human rights and international humanitarian law abuses

Our Contribution

Contributed to national dialogue on the development of ATT roadmaps with a focus on licensing structures and control lists

Supported the creation or improvement of a national control system for arms transfers in

5 States

Strengthened the capacity of 353

officials responsible for transfer controls

Provided guidelines to carry out risk assessments on exports, imports and transit, and risk mitigation measures

United Nations Regional Centre for Peace, Disarmament and Development in Latin America and the Caribbean (UNLIREC)

UNLIREC forms part of the United Nations Office for Disarmament Affairs (UNODA) and is headquartered in Lima, Peru. UNLIREC is mandated to strengthen the capacity of Member States to achieve sustainable peace and security through disarmament, conventional arms and ammunition control and non-proliferation of weapons of mass destruction. It also provides technical assistance in line with international best practices and standards.